"However, it's possible to be stopped during installation process or when running the installation. We have fixed this bug and the fix will be included in the next release. Thanks for attention. Please, share your comments and feedback in that topic's topic." "Originally posted by elvishuti "You can't break Windows by uninstalling it. You can break it by installing something that shouldn't be there in the first place. There is a website out there that tells you what you shouldn't have on your PC." Please, let's not spread misinformation. Windows can be badly damaged in many ways, it is important for the right person to get into Windows. Thanks. "Thank you for your feedback Yes, the preinstall is located at %PROGRAM_FILES%\AppData\Local Lite" "I am using Windows 7 I get to the point where it says it will reboot in 30 seconds, then it doesn't complete installing Windows 7. I can only get into the setup again and then rerun the preinstall, this ends up restarting the installation again. Is there a known solution for this? I have tried reinserting the installation DVD, but that doesn't make a difference. I have also uninstalled everything that was on my computer, just for safety." "Currently there are some bugs that are to be fixed and I can't tell when they will be fixed. However, it's possible to be stopped during installation process or when running the installation. We have fixed this bug and the fix will be included in the next release. Thanks for attention. Please, share your comments and feedback in that topic's topic." "Do you have a technical support subscription or some kind of connection with the company that produces this product?" "Why? Do you have a question about the product you have just installed? What is the difference between a purchased or not a purchased license key? If you have a technical support subscription then you can share your error report or question about installation in our forum. Wouldn't it be awesome if there was an auto update for this, like it happened 09e8f5149f
